"DO YOU KNOW THIS GIRL?" FACEBOOK CONTEST

Winner to Receive Four-Night Vacation for Two to Antwerp, Belgium

NEW YORK, NY (August 23, 2011) – The Red Star Line Museum today announced Jill Barone, of St. Petersburg, FL, as the grand prizewinner of the “Do You Know This Girl?” social media campaign, conducted in anticipation of the Museum’s grand opening in Antwerp, Belgium in spring 2013.

Between 1873 and 1934, legendary shipping company Red Star Line, based in Antwerp, Belgium, transported 2.6 million emigrants on a journey to a new life in North America. Although millions of Europeans traveled on the Red Star Line, the image of one young girl, with a ticket in hand, has inspired a nationwide search to not only discover her identity, but also bring her story to life.

Hosted on the Red Star Line Museum’s official Facebook page, the multi-phase social media campaign asked fans to follow the search for the identity of the mystery girl on the “Do You Know This Girl?” Blog, and answer a series of ten trivia questions. During the second phase, which began on August 9, fans had the opportunity to vote for their favorite essay, as penned by the ten finalists. Each essay incorporated those facts uncovered about the mystery girl’s life to date, and proceeded to symbolically reveal her life story. After a ten-day voting period, Ms. Barone’s entry received 711 votes, earning her 31 percent of the overall votes cast.

As the grand prizewinner, Ms. Barone will be awarded a four-night vacation for two to Antwerp, Belgium to attend the official pre-opening festivities of the Red Star Line Museum in May 2012 and a $1,000 shopping spree at Diane Von Furstenberg’s Antwerp boutique.
